Florence Nightingale

- Florence Nightingale was born in Florence, Italy, on May 12, 1820. The daughter of upper-class British parents, Nightingale pursued a career in nursing, despite family objections.

Florence Nightingale's family home-Embley park.

As a young woman Florence felt that God had called her to help others. She wanted to be a nurse but her parents did not want to her to become one.

Early life

- In 1844 she began to visit hospitals; in 1850 she spent some time with the nursing Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul in Alexandria; and a year later she studied at the institute for Protestant deaconesses in Kaiserswerth, Germany.

Crimean War

- In 1854 she organized a unit of 38 woman nurses for service in the Crimean War; by the end of the war she had become a legend.

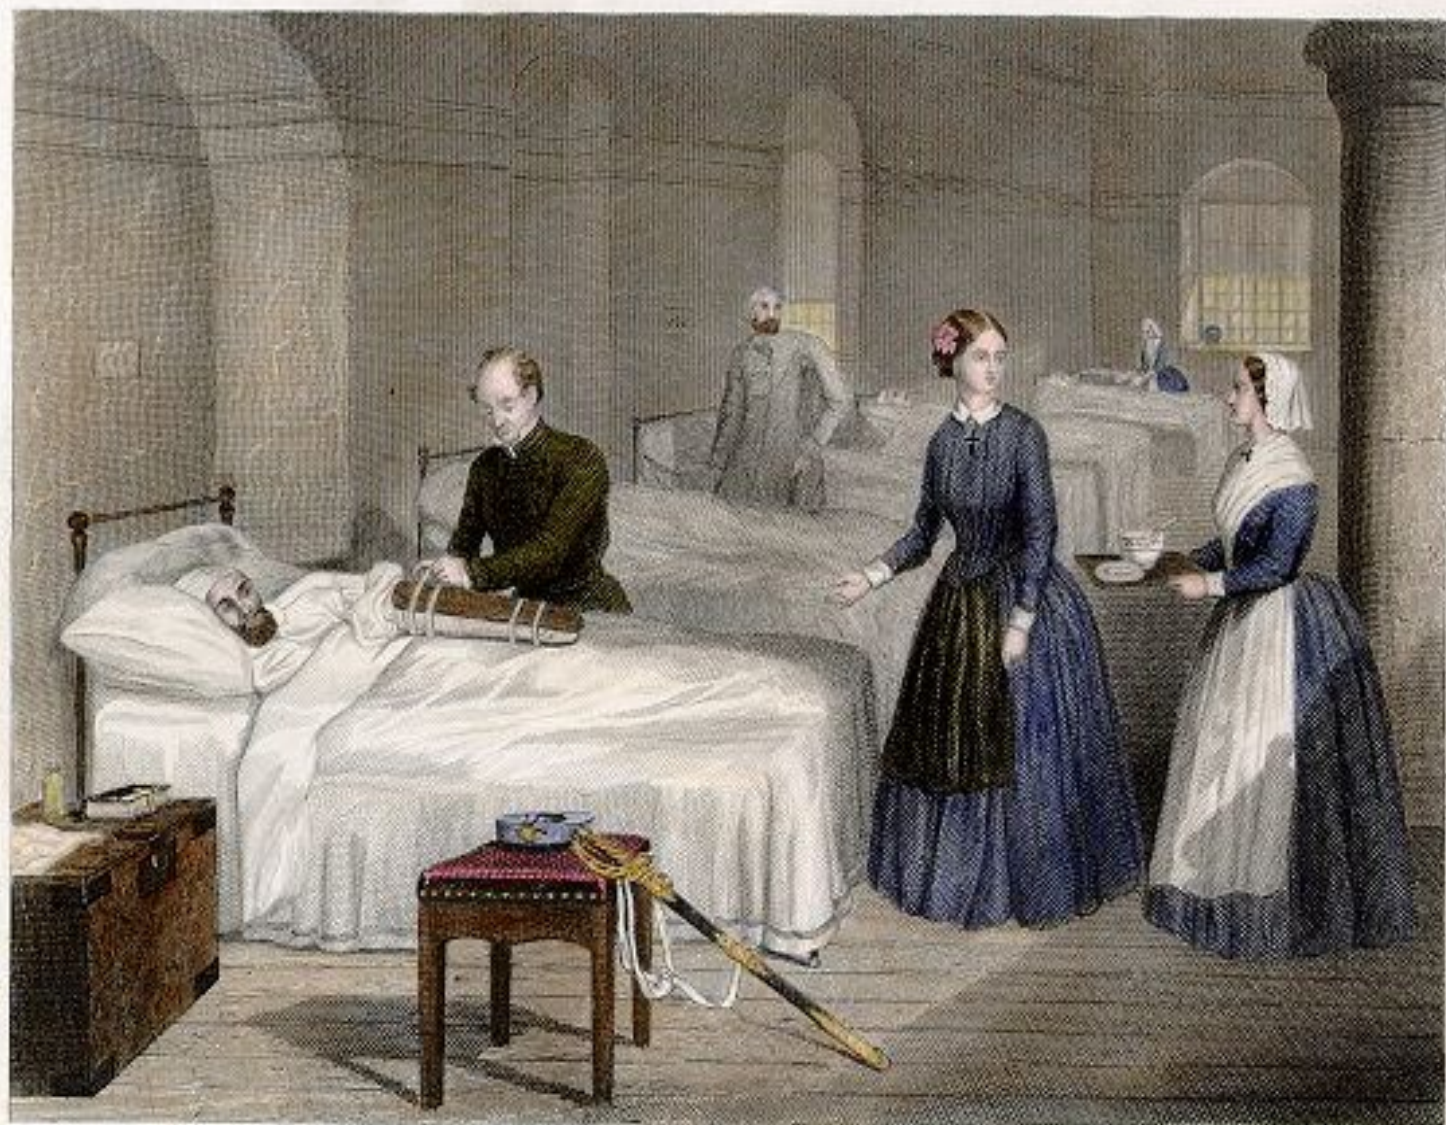

- She arrived early in November 1854. In Scutari (modern-day Üsküdar in Istanbul, Turkey) Nightingale and her nurses found wounded soldiers being badly cared for by overworked medical staff in the face of official indifference.
