

THE SOUTHERN FEDERAL UNIVERSITY
THE INSTITUTE OF SOCIAL AND REGIONAL SCIENCES

The Shiite factor of military-political process in the Eurasian region: formation and tendencies of development.

Salnikov Artem
undergraduate of 2. academic year

The relevance of my research.

The degree of scientific elaboration of my research.

Research objective is studying of formation and tendencies of development of a Shiite factor of military-political process in the Eurasian region

The process of achieving this objective include the following tasks:

- 1
 - To give a clear definition to a phenomenon of the Shiite factor
- 2
 - To consider the political institutions of Shiites
- 3
 - To consider Shiite organizations, to analyze the factors of their formation, the relationship between them
- 4
 - To describe tendencies in the military-political process of the Eurasian region.

- The object
 - Shiite factor
- The subject
 - Political institutions and organizations of Shiites

Methods.

historical approach

content analysis

comparative analysis

legallistic

analysis of specific

Structure.

Introduction

1 chapter (is subdivided into three paragraphs)

2 chapter
(is subdivided into two paragraphs)

conclusions

List of the used literature

applications

The scientific importance consists in creation of theoretical base for further researches as general character, devoted to military-political process in the countries of the Euroasian region, and private - studying of separate political institutes and organizations of Shiites.

The practical importance

results of a research can bring practical benefits to the Russian diplomacy therefore the Shiite factor has to be considered and used at development of foreign policy of Russia for forming of dialogue with all actors in the region.