

HOW TO WRITE A POLICY STATEMENT

What is a policy statement?

- an official document that briefly and clearly explains how your country views a certain problem, what previous experience of dealing with that sort of problems was, and what solutions your country is willing to offer.

What is the structure of policy statement?

Delegation:

Committee:

Question of:

You should always start your documents like this

Three main questions of Policy statement

- 1) What is the background of your country in regard to the problem?
- 2) How does your country treat the issue currently?
- 3) What does your country want to achieve in regard to the issue?

Paragraph #1

Try to state laconically how your country views a certain. You should not be extremely specific, but show that your country gravely addresses the issue

The delegation of Italy regrets the fact that in today's world corruption has spread to many areas of our activity and inhibits the development of states in political, economic, social and cultural spheres and greatly appreciates the role of educational institutions in combating corruption, which also covered the field of education as its pernicious influence in many countries of the world, considering this measure as one of the most effective in solving the issue of corruption

Tell briefly about the problem on the global scale. Why is it that important?

Corruption has always created problems in the development of many countries, and Italy in particular. The presence of corruption in education threatens the efficiency of existing personnel in various public institutions and causes an outflow of capable and talented people who have suffered as a consequence of the corrupted system from the country. The Italian Republic is deeply disturbed by the fact that high rate of corruption can provoke total moral decay of society, increase in crime, instability in political and economic spheres of countries and other problems.

Paragraph #3

What have you done so far to improve the situation?

The Italian government, considering its important mission of eradication of corruption in the country, makes efforts to effectively combat corruption through educational sector, teaching the younger generation about business ethics and dangerous impact of corruption. Substantially, according to Transparency International, anti-corruption associations in schools have been helpful in addressing graft in Italy. There is a significant number of anti-corruption clubs in Italian schools and universities as a part of government policy to promote the ethics of honesty and moral uprightiness among children and to demonstrate them how deeply corruption might be embedded in the public sector. This implies that our country is veritably concerned about the aforementioned question and is willing to assist any state opposing the issue of corruption.

Paragraph #4

What are the decisions that you offer?

The Italy calls upon to:

1. begin to educate the younger generation in the spirit of the fight against corruption, taking such measures as:
 - a) The creation of anti-corruption clubs in schools,
 - b) Active implementation of these ideas in the educational program,
 - c) Holding the events dedicated the harmful effects of corruption;
2. increase control over corruption in the educational sector in order to prevent the outflow of capable staff.

Conclusion

Try to summarize what you have already said. Do not be excessively repetitive; better rephrase.

We are open for any cooperation for the sake of salvation the world from corruption that inhibits the progress in the sphere of economy, science, and politics.
