Comments Offon Federbet criticised over match fixing claims

Federbet, the Belgian-based integrity body which claimed last season 110 matches were identified as having been fixed, with suspicions over a further 350, has been widely criticised by both sporting and gambling organisations.

French regulator ARJEL issued a joint statement with the French Football League (LFP) decrying the claims. It said: "ARJEL and LFP cannot agree with the statements that were made on a lack of control of regulatory authorities and sports organisations in France to fight against sports manipulations. These claims are unfounded."

The UK's Football Conference is also annoyed at Federbet's actions: "The Football Conference works closely with the Football Association on all matters concerning integrity within our sport. This relationship with the Football Association includes liaison around any suspicious betting activity or patterns. Furthermore,

Khalid Ali

Organization Steeped in Secrecy

Khalid Ali the secretary general of the European Sports Security Association (ESSA), which wor with over 20 major sports bodies to root out corruption, was even more scathing.

“No one within the European regulated betting industry is aware of who Federbet are or what they represent,” he said. “They appear to be an organization steeped in secrecy...”

LIGA PORTUGAL CRITICISES FEDERBET MATCH FIXING CLAIMS

PORTUGAL

The Portuguese football leagues ruling body Liga Portugal has criticised the suggestions of match fixing by Federbet, the international agency for detection and prevention of illegal sports betting practices.

Following a review Federbet had openly announced that it had recorded suspicious activities surrounding a number of games throughout Portuguese professional football leagues.
