Londoners love their parks and are proud of them. You can spend the whole day in the country - without leaving London.

London parks are full of trees, grass, flowers and water. You can walk among old trees, relax and enjoy flowers and plants or take part in the many activities such as tennis, swimming and horse riding.

The Royal Parks are the property of the Royal family. In Central London they include Hyde Park, Green Park, St James's Park, Regent's Park and Kensington Gardens.

Speaker's Corner

Hyde Park is famous of its Speaker's Corner. On Sundays you can listen to the speakers at this Corner. People from many countries of the world come and speak here. They can speak about any things which are interesting for them. So anyone can make a speech about he / she believes to be very important. Listeners can ask them difficult questions. You can stand on a box and speak to some of the listeners too!

Kensington Gardens is next to Hyde Park. It's a nice place to walk among flowerbeds and tall trees. Near Long Lake in Kensington Gardens there is a statue of Peter Pan. Can you remember the boy from Never Land who didn't want to grow up? This was the place that Peter landed secretly by boat at night.

Peter stands on a pedestal. He is playing the pipe and little children and small animals are listening to him.

St James's park is the oldest London park. You can see it in front of Buckingham Palace where the Queen lives. It is a small park with beautiful flowerbeds and ponds. Many wild water birds-geese, ducks, pelicans – live there and children and their parents come to feed them every day.
