My blog about storytelling

My little experiment

Hello. We had a very interesting and productive week! We learned a new thing is storytelling Storytelling is one of our oldest artforms. It stimulates the imagination and builds a sense of community between tellers and listeners.

Stories are everywhere – in newspapers, books, on TV and the internet. Every day conversation is full of anecdotes and real life stories. Storytelling helps us understand our environment and personal experience.

Many older stories are originally traditional folktales. They represent the richness of oral patterns of telling and are the product of a community experience, as well as the art of individual storytellers. Historical stories, legends and contemporary stories can also be the subject of the storyteller's tale, and they too embody a strong element of community or collective experience.

Everyone is a storyteller, but some people choose to develop their storytelling skills to become a professional or community storyteller.

And we tried yourself in the role of the storyteller, thanks to our teachers. I think we did a fine job. and I liked the performance of my classmates. They are very dedicated and treated with imagination. One classmate sang the song, the other to the music told. It was very interesting.

I tried to tell the story Who is King of the forest. This is my little experiment. For the first time it did not seem bad. But my classmates did it perfectly. I enjoyed their performance.

In the future we will try to do much more and even better

Interactive Whiteboards

an interactive whiteboard is a large, touch-controlled screen that works with a projector and a computer. Teachers and students can write on the interactive whiteboard in digital ink or use their fingers to control computer applications by pointing, clicking, and dragging. They can also circle relevant sections on the projected image, draw geometric figures, and underline. The whiteboard can display streamed video clips from the Internet, or be hooked up to a DVD player. It's "a combination chalk board, movie projector, and game board," says Lisa Mims, who recently won "Showcase Technology Teacher of the Year" for the Colonial School District in Delaware. "I use it for basic word processing, interactive games and lessons, to show videos, and to check out anything new I've added

Kazakhstan is the world's ninth biggest country by size, and it is more than twice the size of the other Central Asian states combined. Its lack of significant historical sites and endless featureless steppe have put many off Kazakhstan, while many still are captivated by the emptiness and mystery of this Goliath state. It will be many travellers' first port of call on their Central Asian adventure, and there is much for the intrepid traveller to enjoy.

Kazakhstan is the richest country in Central Asia, due to its large oil and natural gas reserves. The country is also the largest landlocked country.
