The game "Give orange"

All the guys lined up in single file. The essence of the game is to pass along the chain of orange under the condition that it can not touch the hands (ie you can transfer shoulder or chin). If an orange falls to the floor, the game begins again.

The game is a "gift"

Each player comes up with a "gift", which he would do to your neighbor. Then, using gestures and facial expressions, each of the players, in turn, begins to show a "gift." Once the neighbor guessing he might propose a "gift" to the next player. The game is forbidden to pronounce the words.

A serene winter scene featuring a snow-covered path that leads into the distance. The path is flanked by snow-laden trees and bushes. A bright, glowing light source, possibly the sun or a street lamp, is visible in the background, creating a soft glow and illuminating the falling snow. The overall atmosphere is peaceful and cold.

But on December 25 which date the Nativity was established by the Roman Church in the IV century and since then, the holiday is celebrated on this day. Some believe that this date was chosen because on this day since the day of pagan times was considered the "birth of the Invincible Sun". Later, it was interpreted that as the month and day of Christ's death is known precisely from the Gospel, and he was supposed to be among the people the total number of years that Christ was to be conceived on the same day when crucified. If the count of 25 March 9 months (March 25, it accounted for Passover), then turned it on December 25.
