Stunning with its grandeur, the castles of great Britain does not cease to attract tourists from all over the world. The high castles of Scotland, castles of Wales and, of course, rich castles in the heart of England. Enumerate all the residence of kings and generals impossible, but it is possible to identify some of the most interesting of them.

Often called the most romantic castle, Eilean donan, a very situated on a tiny island, lying in the fjord Loch Duich in Scotland. After the castle was almost destroyed during the Jacobite uprising in 1719, it lay in ruins for almost 2 centuries, but was restored in the early 20th century.

A photograph of Arundel Castle, a large stone fortress with multiple towers and battlements, situated on a hill. The castle is built from light-colored stone and features several tall, narrow windows. The sky is clear and blue, and the foreground shows some greenery and tree branches.

Built on a hill above the river Arun, Arundel castle founded by Roger de Montgomery, one of the closest advisers of William the Conqueror in the 11th century. Currently serves as the residence of the Dukes of Norfolk.

In world there are a few castles in such unlikely places as the castle on mount St. Michael, which is located on the rocky Cornish island, where at low tide can be reached on foot. The castle serves as the residence of the Auburn family who are in it since the 17th century.

One of the biggest buildings of the Northern Highlands of Scotland, castle Dunrobin in the County of Sutherland, built in the French style, and owes its appearance to sir Charles Barry, the architect of the Palace of Westminster.

A photograph of Bamburgh Castle, a large stone fortress built on a rocky cliff overlooking the sea. The castle features several towers and battlements. The sky is blue with scattered white clouds. In the foreground, there is a sandy beach with some low-lying vegetation, and the calm water of the sea reflects the castle and the sky.

from Elizabeth (1988) to Robin hood (2010),
Bamburgh castle rises
from the rocky shores of Bamburgh,
Northumberland.
Historian and TV
presenter Dan snow calls his view "an incredibly strong and impressive".*

Another of the castles built by Edward I, Conwy castle, topped by eight huge towers, is located on a rocky ledge on the North coast of Wales. They say this castle is one of the best preserved medieval fortifications in Britain.

In contrast to the tiny present Hever Windsor castle, probably the oldest and largest occupied castle in the world and a favorite place of the Queen.

A photograph of Stocksa Castle in Shropshire, England. The castle is a fortified manor built in the 13th century. It features a prominent stone tower with a wooden upper story. The stone walls are made of rough-hewn masonry, and the wooden structure is made of dark timber. The castle is situated on a hillside, with a clear blue sky and green trees in the background. A small flag is visible on the roof of the main building. The overall scene is bright and clear, suggesting a sunny day.

Leeds castle, near Maidstone in Kent, was a favorite residence of royalty, from king Edward I to king Henry VIII. Rare black swans that live in its moat, are alleged to have been presented to Winston Churchill, who, in turn, gave them to the castle.

More than one hundred twenty castles adorn the greatness and beauty of the open spaces of the uk. it's incredibly difficult to choose from all this splendor locks for "mandatory" visit: all of them are full of legends and imbued with echoes of history happened here, part of which were the jousting competitions, the crusades, a long and painful war.
