Exposition "Rubens and Rembrandt"

The museum focuses attention: styles and approaches in painting by Rubens and Rembrandt were completely different, but both worked at about the same time, both were great masters who influenced their own and subsequent generations, and lived relatively close to each other. Rubens "ruled" in Flanders, was erudite and diplomatic, always made concessions to customers and earned the trust of many royal courts of Europe.

Rembrandt also paved his way in Leiden and Amsterdam, was bold in search and independent and almost never left the Netherlands.

The collection of cars of James Bond

The largest collection of James bond's car exhibited in London. The exhibition "bond in Motion" is represented by cars equipped with various devices and weapons, and various props from the shooting of "007".

You Say You Want a Revolution? Records and Rebels 1966-1970

This impressive exhibition in the V & A museum is dedicated to the roaring sixties and all the iconic cultural events and events of the time when the children of flowers thought that the future was in their hands and that beauty would save the world, and the slogan "Make love no war" sounded every step of the way. Then in culture and art a revolution was really taking place, and the society was stirred up by the unprecedented activity of the youth, protesting against everything that seemed to it to be bourgeois and reactionary.
