

Etiquette in Korea

- Etiquette in Korean society, as well as in China, is determined, a national tradition, based on a hierarchical relationship in society and the family.

- When turning to the people in Korea names placed after names
- Koreans try to avoid using personal pronouns, naming the interlocutor by name

- Koreans at home sitting on the floor, placing special pillows for seating, while the legs are pressed under him. Therefore, in the Korean house floor is always kept clean, and it go without shoes, which is placed in the hallway backs to the door, so that it was comfortable to wear.

- Koreans eat with chopsticks. In no case can not stick chopsticks into the rice - it's a bad omen.

