What am I looking at?

A close-up photograph of a single autumn leaf. The leaf is positioned diagonally, showing a vibrant color gradient from bright yellow on the left to deep red on the right. The leaf's venation is clearly visible, with a prominent midrib and secondary veins branching off. The leaf has a serrated edge. It is resting on a dark, textured surface, possibly a tree trunk or a piece of bark, which provides a stark contrast to the bright colors of the leaf. The lighting is soft, highlighting the texture of the leaf's surface.
