

Endangered animals

Why are animals endangered?

ANIMALS ENDANGERED BECAUSE

- People hunt them
- People destroy their habitats
- People pollute air, water, cut trees

Polar bears

Why are polar bears endangered?

- The main reason why polar bears are endangered is global warming. They lost their habitat.

- Because of global warming the world gets hotter and the ice where polar bears live melts. Polar bears can swim, but not for a long distance. So they may drown.

- Also, because of global warming, it is harder for them to catch seals and they may starve to death.

Pandas

Why are polar bears endangered?

- Pandas are endangered because people cut down forests.

- Bamboo plants don't grow fast and can die. That's why pandas haven't home or food and may starve to death.

Tigers

Why are tigers endangered?

- Tigers are endangered because people hunt them for their body parts (skin, bone, meat) to make medicine.
- They lost their habitats because people cut down tree.

- People also hunt them because they want their skins to make clothes and rugs.

If people just weren't throwing garbage on the ground, the world would be a better place.

Now you can change the world.
