

«What do Russian People like to eat?»

It's one of the most popular dishes in Russia. The recipe — Bus created at the 18th century. It's a kind of soup, which got its name from its main ingredient — beetroot.

Nowadays it's made with cabbage, potatoes, carrots, tomatoes and meat. On hot summer days it's even better with no meat in it, just vegetables, fresh cucumbers, eggs, onions and greens.

Traditionally, mothers-in-law bake these for their sons-in-law at Easter, and they also used to be made for poor people and pilgrims.

They should be thin, brown, and round and look like little suns.

They are usually eaten with sour cream, jam, cheese and black or red caviar.

These are a favourite Russian dish. They are made of dough and meat and then they can be frozen and kept in the fridge for a long time.

They are served with butter, sour cream, vinegar or tomato ketchup. You can buy them in the shops too, but the ones you buy can't be compared with the real homemade version.

It's a really delicious, small round bread. Bread used to be the most important food in Russia, and no dish was eaten without it.

That's why bread is still so important to people in Russia. They used to decorate it with leaves and flowers.

There are a lot of drinks in Russia.
For example kvas, sbiten, fruit drink.
