

Going to the shop

THE WORK WAS DONE:

M. BARCHUKOV, J. KOLGANOVA, J. KUZNETSOVA

Before our era people exchanged surplus food and tools for the goods they needed.

Over time, people began to make purchases using valuable metals and coins.

In ancient times, people bought food and necessary things in the markets.

4

in the Middle Ages, there was an expansion of markets: about 50-60 sellers traded in one territory

In large cities, people had the opportunity to visit specialized markets. In addition to ingredients, people could also buy ready-made food in special stores.

2 types of people

```
graph TD; A[2 types of people] --> B[go to the shop]; A --> C[use delivery];
```

go to the shop

use delivery

1. People who go to the shop themselves

People who use delivery

10

