'Was that the question?' he asked.

Reading aloud: 'pronouncing punctuation'

A

Listen to this text. Notice that in speech there are pauses where, in writing, there are punctuation marks.

I can never guess the weather right. If I wear a warm shirt, the weather's hot. If I wear cool clothes, there's a cold wind. When I don't take my umbrella, it rains. If I take my umbrella, does it rain? Of course not! Then I leave it on the bus! Oh well. We all have our weaknesses, I guess!

Note: Reading aloud is good pronunciation practice. Don't forget to 'pronounce the punctuation'.

B

Pauses can change the meaning of what we say. Listen to these pairs of sentences and note the difference in pronunciation.

- a It was cold outside. There was snow on the ground.
- b It was cold. Outside, there was snow on the ground.

- a Was that the question he asked?
- b 'Was that the question?' he asked.

- a I got up, quickly got dressed, and went downstairs.
- b I got up quickly, got dressed, and went downstairs.

C

We need to use pauses to give us time to think, and to give the listener time to take in the information. Listen to this address and note that there are pauses where there are line breaks and where there are gaps in the telephone number. Notice also that when the speaker spells her surname and email address, she divides the letters into groups.

Exercises

- 42.1 Read this weather forecast aloud, 'pronouncing the punctuation'. Record yourself if you can. Then listen and compare.

And for Friday, well, another wintry day in all parts of the region. Temperatures near freezing in many places, and along the coast, the wind will make it feel very cold indeed. Inland, some snow on the hills, and there may be fog in the valleys. If you're out and about driving, watch out for those icy roads! And for the weekend? Well, we're not expecting much change, I'm afraid. And that's all from me. Goodnight.

42.2

The texts below are really two sentences, but the punctuation is missing. The two sentences are divided before or after the underlined expression. Listen and draw one line / to show where the sentences are divided.

EXAMPLE They're leaving / soon it'll be quieter.

- 1 There was nothing inside it was empty.
- 2 We walked carefully downstairs it was dark.
- 3 I watched him silently he opened the drawer.
- 4 The rain didn't stop the next day it just carried on.
- 5 The weather was hot at the weekend it was 40 degrees.
- 6 I saw her clearly she was hungry.
- 7 It was cold last night the roads were icy.

Follow up: Read the sentences above aloud, once with the sentence break before the underlined expression, then again with the sentence break after it.

42.3

Listen and write the name, address and contact details that you hear.
