Vikings were ancient Scandinavian members of the marine campaigns in the late 8th to the mid 11th centuries.

The Vikings called them in the Nordic countries;
in Russia they were known as the Vikings ,
and in Western Europe — the Normans.

The word “Viking” translates from old Norse as “the man from the Vik fjord, Bay. A fjord is a long, narrow Bay. Typically, these bays are in mountainous terrain.

From Viking was Russian word
"knight".

In the VIII-XI centuries the Vikings lived on the coast of Scandinavia and the Baltic sea, where Norway, Sweden and Denmark.
